Why WHO's alert over Indian medicines in Gambia should not be ignored

India's apex medical regulatory body, Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation (CDSCO), and state authorities have opened investigations into cough syrups manufactured by Maiden Pharmaceuticals after being alerted by the WHO. Sixty-six children have allegedly died in Gambia after consuming the medicines manufactured by the Haryana-based pharma company. The global health agency said that its laboratory analysis of samples of these syrups — Promethazine Oral Solution, Cough Syrup, Cough Syrup, Cough Syrup, and Magrip N Cold Syrup — revealed the presence of "unacceptable amounts of diethylene glycol and ethylene glycol". These chemicals are toxic to humans, and can result in abdominal pain, vomiting, diarrhoea, inability to pass urine, headache, and altered mental state. It can also lead to acute kidney injury that can prove fatal in children. In 2020, 17 children died in Jammu and Kashmir after consuming a syrup with high levels of diethylene glycol. After this tragedy, India phased out cough syrups in favour of suspensions that do not carry the risk of containing the two toxins. However, by all accounts, such dubious quality drugs continue to be manufactured, and they often find their way to Third World countries where regulations are weak.

Preliminary inquiries have revealed that Maiden Pharmaceuticals manufactured the four cough syrups only for export to Gambia. That should be no reason for relaxing regulatory scrutiny on them in the country of their manufacture. Under the Drugs and Cosmetic Act, 1940 the primary remit for monitoring the manufacture and sale of drugs is that of state authorities. The CDSCO is responsible for laying down standards and providing expert advice to regulators in the states. However, as the 2020 J&K tragedy highlighted, there is very little information sharing between authorities in the states and the Centre. Drugs that fail quality tests in one state continue to be sold in others largely because there is no binding mechanism that stipulates the nationwide recall of such medicines. According to a CDSCO survey in 2014-2016, about five per cent of Indian drugs, several of them manufactured by large pharma companies, failed the quality test.

Independent studies suggest that this figure could be much higher. The country's pharma industry has largely been in denial over quality-related concerns expressed by national and international observers.

Arvind Kejriwal's retort at Delhi-L-G stands out in grim and humourous times

Descriptions of Indian politics rely on metaphors that are usually violent. There's "poaching of leaders", "battleground x" (where x is a state going to polls), and even the "cut and thrust of debate" in the legislature. As politics becomes more and more polarised, the political conversation is turning increasingly vitriolic. Parliament, the putative centre of debate and dissent, is either stifling disagreement and discussion or being held up by disruptions, depending on which side of the fence you stand. What is missing in all this — whether from the high-minded pulpit or the shrill attacks on TV channels — is a bit of humour. In such a setting, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's jibe at L-G V K Saxena is striking.

Kejriwal was uncharacteristically silent after an irate Saxena wrote to him demanding an explanation for his absence at Raighat on Gandhi Jayanti. When he did finally respond via Twitter, Kejriwal asked the L-G to "chill", saying that "my wife doesn't scold me as much as L-G Sahib does every day". This light moment, the well-timed display of wit, is a breath of fresh air, not just because Kejriwal usually sounds heavy-footed and self-righteous as he paints contrived oppositions between "us", the AAP vs "them", the political class. More importantly, in these grim times, it is a rare instance of someone in high office wearing power lightly. Not so long ago, wit and the lighter moment weren't quite so rare. Parliament, in particular, was a place for poking gentle fun at colleagues who were adversaries, but never enemies. Election rallies were about a more relatable oratory, and the ability to make a huge crowd chuckle along was a much sought-after skill. Now, of course, social media and the democratisation of the audiovisual medium make one-way communication more possible. Perhaps that's why there is less conversation — and less laughter. Descriptions of Indian politics rely on metaphors that are usually violent. There's "poaching of leaders", "battleground x" (where x is a state going to polls), and even the "cut and thrust of debate" in the legislature. As politics becomes more and more polarised, the political conversation is turning increasingly vitriolic. Parliament, the putative centre of debate and dissent, is either stifling disagreement and discussion or being held up by disruptions, depending on which side of the fence you stand.
